Notice of Appeal

Comes Now, David Nordlund, In Propria Persona, and Ex Parte, and does appeal, CRIMINAL DEFICIENCY MEMO, dated September 12, 2019, issued by CLERK L Wilson, r.e. NOTICE TO THE SUPERIOR COURT AT ANCHORAGE : EX PARTE NOTIFICATION

The above stated is a criminal matter, Criminal Rule 50 applies, Criminal Rule 50 does not prohibit a named defendant from communicating directly with the court.

Civil Rule 81(c) does not apply to criminal matters in the context proscribed in said DEFICIENCY MEMO, if it were construed to be deemed appropriate, it would be unconstitutional, as it would deny an accused person from redressing the government, and exercising other rights ensured by the federal and state constitutions, especially when appointed counsel fails to exert the rights of an accused on his/her behalf, thus calling into question the integrity of the judicial system.

Nothing precludes an accused from requesting that a court take notice of law RULE OF EVIDENCE 202

3AN-19-4232cr (David Nordlund)

ALLOCUTION

In Alaska an accused is protected by two SPEEDY TRIAL right guarantees. Depending upon jurisdiction, one is found in Amendment Six of the United States Constitution, and the other is found in Article 1, section 11 of the Alaska Constitution.

Amendment Six states in pertinent part, "the accused shall 'enjoy' the right to a public and SPEEDY TRIAL," while Article 1 section 11 states, "the accused shall 'have' the right to a public and SPEEDY TRIAL."

The Alaska Supreme Court has interpreted that the framers of the Alaska Constitution, by substituting the word "enjoy" for "have", meant to ensure that an accused's right to a public and SPEEDY TRIAL be more than merely possessory.

Unfortunately, the Alaska Constitution does not specify what a SPEEDY TRIAL is, nor is there statute defining such. Therefore, in exercising its authority, the Alaska Supreme Court promulgated Rule 45 of Criminal Procedure, thereby setting in place procedure to ensure protection of an

DAVID NORDLUND PROPRIA PERSONA
G.C.C.C.

Wasilla, AK 99623

1 accused's substantive right to a SPEEDY TRIAL as secured
2 by the Alaska Constitution.

3 Under the United States Constitution SPEEDY TRIAL time
4 commences upon indictment. However, under the Alaska Con-
5 stitution, pursuant to Rule 45, SPEEDY TRIAL time commences
6 when the accused is served with a charging document.

7 The rule, unfortunately, does not specify when an accu-
8 sed is "served", therefore the Alaska Supreme Court has held
9 that SPEEDY TRIAL time commences when information is filed
10 with the court.

11 Rule 45 mandates that if the accused is not brought to 12 trial within "the time for trial", which is 120 days "with 13 much room to spare", the case shall be dismissed and the 14 STATE loses its power to prosecute.

15 In this instant matter SPEEDY TRIAL time commenced on 16 April 29, 2019, when the STATE filed information with the 17 court, and had a warrant for arrest issued. (note: statute
18 specifies that a prosecution is "commenced" by the issuance 19 of such a warrant)

20 Provided no time could be deemed "tolled" and exclud-
21 able from computation, SPEEDY TRIAL time was set to end on 22 August 27, 2019. (note: at no time did time toll in this ins-23 tant matter)

24 When trial was set for September 3, 2019, the accused
25 in this instant matter objected to the trial date as it ex-
26 ceeded the 120 days allowed by court rule. (note: court rule
27 governs and supercedes unless statute expressly states other 28 wise)

1 Rather than grant the accused's Rule 45 motion, the
2 judge in this instant matter gave the STATE's prosecution
3 a continuance to which the accused did not consent.

4 Trial did not take place until 147 days after the 5 "time for trial" commenced. (note: the Alaska Supreme Court
6 has previously held that a trial time of 141 days to be in 7 violation of Rule 45, Peterkin, 543 P.2d 418)

8 Being that the STATE did not prosecute within the time
9 allowed, the matter should have been dismissed, however the 10 court continued to adjudicate the matter.

11 Now the question arises, did the court act in absence of 12 all jurisdiction, or did the court proceed in another juris-
13 diction?

14 In denying the Rule 45 motion the Judge gave three reasons:
15 1. The accused was represented by counsel, 2. A memo was cir-
16 culated requesting correction of time (note: the accused
17 brought the need to correct the time to the attention of coun-
18 sel and two other agents of the PUBLIC DEFENDER AGENCY, how-
19 ever, counsel failed to acknowledge the correct commencement
20 point), and 3. that SPEEDY TRIAL time commences upon indictment

21 The first two reasons given make no sense. They only admit
22 the ineffectiveness of counsel, and to the failure of the court
23 and STATE to observe the Alaska Constitution.

24 However, the third reason could be sound if it were to 25 admit another jurisdiction, a jurisdiction of which state and 26 and federal district courts concurrently share.

27

28

1 This jurisdiction can be found under 28 USCS § 1333
2 pursuant to the "saving to suitors" exception. In this
3 jurisdiction the United States Supreme Court has allowed
4 state courts to proceed in rem state forfeiture actions.

5 The coversheet of the indictment issued in this instant
6 matter also admits the nature of an in rem state forfeiture
7 action. (note: the caption on the indictment coversheet
8 appears as identical to the caption on the coversheet on 9 this immediate document)

10 The given form of the coversheet of the indictment, in 11 fact, places the person of the accused in position as claim-
12 ant in an in rem state forfeiture action.

13 Such in rem actions are against property and a claimant
14 of which does not face a loss liberty, therefore, this court 15 is without jurisdiction to impose a loss of liberty upon the 16 person of the accused.

17 However, the question remains, did the court act in 18 absence of all jurisdiction, or did the court proceed an 19 action that recognizes a property interest in a human being?

20 Should the question be affirmed in the latter then there
21 can be no due process, however, if the former is affirmed
22 then this court has reduced the authority of the Alaska Con-
23 stitution and Supreme Court rule to mere words.

points of concern for appellate review

1. Video surveillance, everything was caught on video record. There was a duty owed to collect, preserve, and present the entire footage. 1. To the accused to determine culpability and severity of punishment, 2. To the property owner to determine fair and accurate restitution, 3. To the court above all so that it may determine truth and administer justice. Without the "original" entire video footage the right of the accused to fair and just treatment in the course of legislative and executive investigation has been infringed, thus denying the accused a fair trial in violation of Section 7 of the Alaska Constitution.
2. Officers Neace and Schaefer were not called to testify. They were the officers who swore the complaint and testified at grand jury, and had the most relevant information to the incident.
3. Conduct of Lisa Kelley, inducing testimony of witnesses, and statements of closing argument. Her claim that the accused was safe in the lobby may have been extremely persuasive to the jury when in fact the surveillance video of the lobby would have shown the clerk to be hostile and threatening towards the accused and that the accused was not in fact NOT safe in the lobby.
4. Adequacy of defense counsel, counsel did not request through court order key pieces of evidence and witnesses, failing to submit the case to the compulsory and adversarial processes. A "Thorne" instruction should have been requested in regards to the missing pieces of video footage not produced by the prosecution.
5. Comment of the judge, that I couldn't have access to the compulsory process, that it was up to Ms. Kelley to prove her case.
6. Three disks, not presented or testified to, yet made available to jury for deliberation, and ordered destroyed afterwards.
10. 911 calls and testimony of the records custodian, custodian testified to calls placed to 911 by telephone number 907- 201-9081 which defense counsel wrote on an easel, however, this evidence was not admitted into record. The accused testified to "using" a telephone connected to this number. Using this testimony an alleged typed 911 call notes sheet linked to alleged 911 recordings not testified to nor authenticated was admitted into the record and given to the jury for deliberation. Actual 911 calls placed by both (also #270) telephone numbers will shed a different light on the matter.

11. Should the allegation of the action proceeded as a state forfeiture action be substantiated, then both agents of the STATE OF ALASKA, PUBLIC DEFENDER AGENCY, and DEPARTMENT OF LAW, would be financial beneficiaries of an adjudication for libel against the accused, and thus be financially interested in the courts decision.
12. The STATE did not prove beyond a reasonable doubt that the accused had no right or justifiable ground to believe that his actions were justified, and the trial court misallocated the burden of proof with respect to the necessity defense.
13. The STATE did not establish mens rea beyond a reasonable doubt in regards to intentionally, or recklessly creating a risk, the burden of specific intent was not met.
14. The court erred in allowing the jury to view the charging document which contained previous convictions that are highly inflammatory.
15. Defense counsel colluding with the prosecution to exclude the original juror #8. This person was trained by the military to discern evidence and establish the facts.

6. I, David Nordlund, affirm the above is true and correct to the best of my knowledge and belief.

Dear Mr. Nordlund,

The Anchorage Police Department Internal Affairs Division has completed the investigation regarding your complaint surrounding your allegations that the 911 system didn't work, Ofc. Neace tased you in the face (causing you to fall off the balcony) and officers failed to collect evidence at the scene. The circumstances, as well as the actions of the Officers, were thoroughly evaluated in consideration of the policies and procedures of the Anchorage Police Department.

The investigation yielded no information to indicate a problem with the 911 system on the date in question. The system documented 10 calls from your phone, each of which was recorded, in the minutes leading up to Officers contacting you. Call Takers attempted to gather information from you, but you either wouldn't answer them or mumbled, making it impossible to understand what you were saying. They did create a call to send officers to your location to check on you based on the minimal information they had.

The investigation resulted in a finding of Unfounded in regards to Ofc. Neace tasing you. This finding means the investigation determined, by the preponderance of the evidence, that the alleged conduct did not occur. There were multiple civilian witnesses whose statements contradict your allegations against Ofc. Neace.

Lastly, the investigation resulted in a finding of Exonerated regarding the allegation officers failed to collect evidence in an attempt to cover up wrong doing. This finding means the investigation determined, by the preponderance of the evidence, that the alleged conduct did occur but did not violate APD policies, procedures or training. Multiple Officers collected evidence in varying forms. One facet of that evidence was video taken on a digital camera, as there was no other way to capture the video at that time.

Please feel free to contact me should you have any further need for assistance.

Sincerely,

Sergeant Amanda Fisher

Mr. Nordlund,

Thank you for contacting the Municipal Ombudsman's Office with your concerns regarding the Anchorage Police Department (APD). You made several allegations involving the APD, related to your criminal case, #3AN-19-4232.

I reviewed your letter to me, dated October 4, 2019, and the Ombudsman complaint form you filed with our office, dated September 27, 2019. I spoke with Sergeant Amanda Fisher, with APD, Internal Affairs (IA), and reviewed IA's investigation of your complaint. Based on my review, I have determined:

- You alleged that the 911 system failed you. The audio tapes of the 10 calls that you placed to 911 show that the 911 operators attempted to assist you, but that you either did not speak during the calls, or spoke unintelligibly, so that the operations could not assist you. This complaint is UNSUPPORTED by any evidence.
- You alleged that APD officers tasered you and caused you to fall from a second-floor balcony. Multiple third-party witnesses have stated that you jumped from the balcony. This complaint is UNSUPPORTED by any evidence.
- You alleged that APD officers falsified CAD records and dashboard video recordings. I could find no evidence to support this allegation. To falsify CAD records and dashboard video recordings would necessarily have to involve multiple APD officers and technicians. This complaint is UNSUPPORTED by any evidence.

Other than your allegations, I could not find any evidence to support your complaints. These are issues that your attorney should have raised at trial and can raise on appeal. At this time I am closing your complaint with our office.

Regards,

Darrel W. Hess

Affidavit of David Nordlund

I, David Nordlund, owned a large manilla envelope. Said envelope contained police reports case # 19-014932, incident number A191190129, CAD reports for said incident, CAD reports regarding 911 calls placed by telephone # 907-201-9081, photos of an alleged crime scene, photos of bodily injuries sustained by my self, photos of a bloody taser prong, copies of exhibits introduced at trial in case # 3AN-19-4232, extensive legal research and notes compiled by my self, and the catalogue of all the exhibits introduced at trial mentioned above.

On September 26, 2019 possession of said envelope and contents converted from my self to STATE OF ALASKA D.O.C. employee Ofc. James

At approx. 6:45 P.M. on Sept. 26, 2019 Ofc. Guzy, while distributing other properties collected by Ofc. James, did not have my envelope and contents described above.

I then spent the next 10 days submitting lost/stolen property forms, and communicating via R.F.I. to security, Ofc. Hubbard, and property clerk.
(I requested copies of such and have not received any)

I then outlined my attempts at informal resolution in an R.F.I. to security and property.

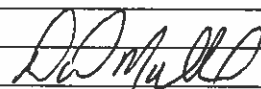

When I received the response on the original R.F.I. I attached said R.F.I. to a grievance form and submitted said form.

My grievance has not been responded to.

(note: as of writing, while waiting for a notary, my grievance has been responded to. The response is inaccurate.)

I, David Nordlund, affirm the above is True and correct to the best of my knowledge and belief. I have been denied notary, my signature is TRUE

Signed 26, October 2019

NARRATIVE SYNOPSIS: At 0424 hours, I responded to [REDACTED] reference a male breaking windows. Upon arrival, myself and other officers attempted to contact the suspect (later identified as DAVID NORDLUND) at which point, NORDLUND ran away from us and jumped from the second floor balcony and sustained injuries. NORDLUND was taken into custody for Criminal Mischief and transported to [REDACTED] for a medical clearance. NORDLUND broke 10 double paned windows at the [REDACTED] costing approximately $5000 in property damage. DISPATCH: At 0424 hours, I responded to [REDACTED] reference a male breaking windows. ARRIVAL OBSERVATIONS: Upon arrival, I observed a [REDACTED] employee standing near the front entrance of the hotel and waving at us. I observed a male adult wearing brown Carhart pants and a black Carhart Jacket on the second floor balcony of the hotel. I observed several residents of the hotel outside of their rooms watching. ACTIONS TAKEN: As OFC. NEACE and OFC. RAYGOR attempted to make contact with the suspect (later identified as DAVID NORDLUND), NORDLUND began to runaway from them while on the balcony. I ran to the other end of the balcony on the ground floor to cut off the suspect. OBSERVATIONS: NORDLUND saw that I was going to cut him off and jumped from the second floor balcony. NORDLUND landed on his head first. NORDLUND began to stand back up and I observed OFC. NEACE deploy his taser at NORDLUND when he started to get back up after jumping. I observed one probe made contact in his left shoulder, but it did not appear to be affective as NORDLUND was wearing a thick Carhart jacket. ACTIONS TAKEN: I ran over to where he landed and gave him commands to stop running and to show me his hands. I gave the commands while at guard with my taser. Once NORDLUND began responding to my commands and complying, I commanded him to lay on his stomach. I placed NORDLUND in handcuffs (CF/DL), and sat him up to lean against the nearby wall. OBSERVATIONS:

NORDLUND had a large laceration on his eyebrow, which was bleeding profusely. The medics arrived soon after and wiped some of the blood off of his face and stated he would need stitches. During our entire contact (recorded and uploaded to DIMS server), NORDLUND kept asking if we were going to kill him. He expressed that someone was trying to kill him, but was unable to say who. He was very jittery and could not sit still. He appeared to be very paranoid and kept asking where I was taking him. I told him he was going to the hospital.

ACTIONS TAKEN:

After the medics were done looking at NORDLUND, I escorted him to my patrol car and conducted a pat search for weapons, finding none. I placed him in the back seat of my patrol car and transported him to the ER where he was admitted. I notified Palmer Adult Probations of the incident.

INFORMATION:

While inside the ER, NORDLUND began actively resisting by bracing, tensing his arms, and trying to kick me and other hospital security officers. He had to be secured to the hospital bed by all by limbs. Hospital staff advised that they no longer needed us and would give APD a call before he was released in order to place him under arrest. OFC. NEACE obtained an arrest warrant for NORDLUND.

OFFICERS INVOLVED:

OFC. REEVES took photographs of NORDLUND'S injuries and of the scene. (supplement report)

OFC. NEACE (supplement report)

OFC. RAYGOR (supplement report)

NARRATIVE

DISPATCH/NOTIFICATIONS:

On 4/29/2019 at 0425 hours, several officers responded to the [REDACTED] reference a male, later identified as DAVID NORDLUND, that was breaking out windows on the building. Dispatch advised a caller from room [REDACTED] also called and said her window was broken and she could hear DAVID breaking other windows in the hotel. Dispatch advised they could hear windows breaking in the background and the caller advised the DAVID was on the second floor. She described him as a Caucasian male with tattoos with tattoos on his hand. The complainant advised she did not know DAVID and she was scared because he was picking up pieces of glass. Other officers arrived and advised they saw DAVID on the second floor. Officers advised he ran from them and jumped off the second story balcony. K9 OFC BREAGER advised there was a taser deployment. I responded to assist with the damaged property and the taser deployment.

ARRIVAL/OBSERVATIONS:

Upon arrival, I saw officers walking DAVID through the parking lot between the north and south sides of the building. He had blood on his forehead and I could see a taser probe sticking out of the left shoulder of his jacket. He was rambling incoherently and nervously. The blood appeared to be coming from a gash on his forehead near his left eyebrow. The skin was torn and flapping down. Medics arrived to assess DAVID'S injuries. I could see blood drops on the pavement outside of rooms [REDACTED] and I was advised that area was where DAVID landed after he leapt from the second story. OFC BEATTY informed me there was damage to the windows of rooms [REDACTED]. No entry was made to any of the rooms and there was no other apparent damage to the building besides the broken windows. I overheard the staff estimate that the windows were worth about $500.00 each.

ACTIONS TAKEN:

I seized the taser cartridge, wires, and probes. I photographed the items and placed them into APD'S Property and Evidence. I took general photographs of DAVID'S injuries. I took photographs of the damage to windows from room [REDACTED]. OFC FLETCHER photographed the damage to rooms [REDACTED] and [REDACTED]. I completed two floor plan diagrams of the first and second floors to document where damage was done. The diagrams were submitted to APD Records. I went to room [REDACTED] with OFC RAYGOR to speak with the resident. It was thought that she may know DAVID.

CONTACT WITH MARITES KLINGER: (not audio recorded)

MARITES told OFC RAYGOR and I that she did know DAVID, but she was not involved with him. She said she knew him from when she worked at the [REDACTED]. She said he was an inmate while she worked there. He got a room at the [REDACTED] a few months prior and she said she did not speak with him or have any business with him. She said he woke her up that night screaming about a fire. She said she peeked through her door to look for a fire, but she did not let him inside. She said she had no further information about the incident that night.

PHOTOGRAPHS TAKEN:

I took general photographs of DAVID'S injuries. He had a gash near his left eyebrow that bled down onto his face. The skin was torn back and flapping. I took photographs of the damage to the windows. Rooms [REDACTED] all had damage to their front windows. Rooms [REDACTED] were on the north building with south facing windows that were broken. Rooms [REDACTED] were on the west side of the building and they had broken east facing windows. Rooms [REDACTED] were on the south side of the building and they had broken north facing windows. OFC FLETCHER photographed the damage to rooms [REDACTED] They had west facing windows that were broken. Lastly, I took photographs of the taser cartridge, wires, and probes.

NARRATIVESYNOPSIS:

On 4/28/2019 at about 0425 hrs, I responded to the [REDACTED] for a vandalism call. The suspect, later identified as DAVID NORDLUND, had broken out 10 windows of 10 different rooms, worth about 5000 dollars. He then ran upon contacting him while on the second story. When he was given a taser warning he then jumped off the second story balcony. DAVID NORDLUND was then tased after hitting the ground and was taken into custody. With the injuries he sustained from the fall he was taken to the hospital where he was receiving medial treatment. We were told he would be there for hours for testing and the drugs in his system. I then went and got an arrest warrant for him.

DISPATCH/NOTIFICATIONS:

On 4/28/2019 at about 0425 hrs, I responded to the [REDACTED] for a vandalism call. The last notification I was given was the suspect had picked up two bigs shards of glass in his hands.

ARRIVAL/OBSERVATIONS:

The suspect, later identified as DAVID NORDLUND, had broken out 10 windows of 10 different rooms, worth about 5000 dollars. He was standing up on the second balcony with The shards of glass in his hands and yelling about murder. He then put his hands down and I could no longer see them from my view. He then walked in front of the stairs and the glass was gone, but I was unsure where he put them.

ACTION TAKEN:

Upon contacting him I initially had my pistol out but when I saw the glass was gone I switched to my taser. I then said "Anchorage Police stop" he then started to run while on the second story. I then began to run after him. As I was chasing him I told him to stop. I then told him to stop or he will be tased, and when he was given a taser warning he jumped off the second story balcony. NORDLUND then was getting back up to his feet after he hit the ground. I then tased him from the second story because he was trying to run away again towards the other officers arriving, and I was still unsure if he had the shards of glass on his person. He was then taken into custody. Medics arrived and evaluated him, which they stated he was fine to ride with us to the hospital. With the injuries he sustained from the fall he was taken to the hospital where he was receiving medial treatment. We were told he would be there for hours for testing and the drugs in his system. I then went and got an arrest warrant for him. 3AN19-4232CR

OBSERVATIONS OF INJURIES:

He had a large gash on his forehead from where he hit the ground. He was also limping saying his left leg hurt.

INFORMATION:

He admitted to using meth yesterday, and was claiming some one was trying to murder him.

DISPATCH:

On 4/29/19 at approximately 0430 I responded to a disturbance at the [REDACTED] Dispatch had advised of a male breaking windows and when the first officers arrived on scene they stated he tried to flee on foot jumping off a second floor balcony and that there had been taser deployment.

ARRIVAL/OBSERVATIONS:

I arrived on scene and located the officers already present and suspect, later identified as DAVID NORDLUND, in the exterior courtyard of the U shaped building. NORDLUND was on his hands and knees with Ofc SCHAFER and Ofc RAYGOR on the ground floor with him while Ofc NEESE was still on the second floor balcony above. NORDLUND did not appear to be compliant with commands to lay down on his stomach remaining on his hands and knees. NORDLUND did appear to be bleeding from his head but was conscious and alert moving around on his hands and knees.

ACTION TAKEN:

I took hold of NORDLUND by his pants near the ankles pulling him backwards and proning him out. I took a position of back control and secured one arm behind NORLUND'S back while Ofc SCHAFER did the same with the second arm and placed him in handcuffs.

Ofc SCHAFER took custody of NORDLUND and AFD responded to the scene for his injuries.

NARRATIVE

DISPATCH/NOTIFICATIONS:

On 04/29/2019 at approximately 04:25 hours, I was dispatched with OFC NEACE and OFC SCHAFER to the [REDACTED] in reference to a vandalism in progress. Dispatch advised a male was breaking windows with his elbow and had picked up a piece of the broken glass.

ARRIVAL/OBSERVATIONS:

On arrival, I was contacted by a male, later identified as the complainant, VISHNU THANKACHAN, who advised the suspect, later identified as DAVID NORDLUND, was standing on the second floor by room [REDACTED] THANKACHAN stated NORDLUND picked up a piece of broken glass and was carrying it.

INFORMATION/USE OF FORCE:

On approach to contact NORDLUND, I displayed my Taser in my left hand. NORDLUND began to walk away from OFC NEACE and myself. He was instructed to stop, at which time NORDLUND began to run away. NORDLUND proceeded to jump off the railing on the second floor. I went to the ground floor, where I saw NORDLUND kneeling on the ground. I pointed my Taser at NORDLUND; with one dot covering his lower left abdomen and the second flashing dot covering his left thigh. While displaying my Taser, I began to make commands to NORDLUND. I instructed NORDLUND to lay on his stomach with this hands on the ground, NORDLUND complied. OFC BREAGER took back control of NORDLUND and OFC SCHAFER placed him in handcuffs.

Once NORDLUND was in custody, I contacted the complainant, VISHNU THANKACHAN.

INTERVIEW WITH VISHNU THANKACHAN (DIGITALLY RECORDED):

THANKACHAN was working behind the front counter when NORDLUND "banged" on the window from the outside of building. THANKACHAN believed it was NORDLUND'S attempt to get his attention. NORDLUND then entered the building and requested THANKACHAN allow him use of the telephone. NORDLUND claimed there was someone trying to murder him and he needed to use the phone. THANKACHAN advised there was no phone for NORDLUND to use. NORDLUND grabbed the card-keying machine that was behind the desk. When NORDLUND realized the machine was not a phone, he left the machine on the counter and began to walk away, heading toward the units. THANKACHAN yelled out at NORDLUND to not head upstairs to the units.

THANKACHAN watched as NORDLUND went upstairs and knocked on the door of what he believed was unit [REDACTED]. He stepped outside as he watched NORDLUND approach unit [REDACTED] knocking on the door once before breaking the window with his elbow. THANKACHAN watched as NORDLUND began to hit each window with his elbow, hearing glass break nearly every time.

THANKACHAN later advised when NORDLUND was closer to unit [REDACTED] he heard a female yelling "Stop it, David!" He believed the woman's name was MARY who was staying in unit [REDACTED]. THANKACHAN searched their computer system and confirmed DAVID NORDLUND was not a customer at the inn. THANKACHAN did not have access to the cameras, but confirmed they had both interior and exterior cameras. He advised his boss, KISANG CHO, had been made aware of the incident and was the only person who had camera access. He provided me CHO'S phone number.

CONTACT WITH KISANG CHO, TELEPHONICALLY (NOT RECORDED):

CHO explained the inn had cameras covering the lobby of the inn as well as cameras that cover the second floor. CHO claimed he would be at the inn around approximately 1000 hours on 4/29/2019. CHO stated it would be approximately $500.00 per window to replace. CHO requested I leave him a note with details for what needed to be recorded. CHO would try to have footage available for officers later in the day.

ACTION TAKEN:

I provided THANKACHAN my card. On the back of my card was a case number and a note requesting interior and exterior camera footage on 4/29/2019 between the hours of 0345-0430.

INFORMATION:

I went with OFC REEVES to unit [REDACTED] where we contacted MARITES KLINGER. OFC REEVES conducted an interview.

FOLLOW UP:

I briefed OFC ARNOLD of Day Shift Patrol on the case. OFC ARNOLD will contact CHO on 4/29/2019 to pick up camera footage.

Luke,
We checked and we cannot locate any phone calls from [REDACTED] on April 29, 2019. Are you sure the phone number is correct? Can they double check cell phone records? Also, [REDACTED] is one of APD's internal phone numbers so there is no way he called from that phone number.
Just FYI I'm here until 4pm today then I'm gone until Monday August 12th.

INFORMATION:
On 4/17/19 at 0054 hours, FTO RICHWINE and I responded to [REDACTED] in response to several people in the stairwell that refused to leave. On scene, OFC. EUBANK and I made contact with CHRISTOPHER NORDLUND (identified by AK OL). A computer check of NORDLUND showed him to be a registered Sex Offender with a registered address of [REDACTED] Anchorage. On contact, NORDLUND stated to us he had been living at [REDACTED] since last summer and he receives his mail there.
ACTION TAKEN:
I assisted OFC. EUBANK with placing NORDLUND into handcuffs and pat searched him for weapons. During the pat search, OFC EUBANK identified a glass pipe commonly used for smoking methamphetamine which NORDLUND stated he found on the ground. In his right coat pocket, I identified a butane lighter commonly used with methamphetamine pipes.
INFORMATION:

OFC. EUBANK transported NORDLUND to ANJ. I completed my report for review.

STATEMENT OF THOUGHT IN REGARD TO LITIGATION
OF ABOVE CAPTIONED MATTER

It is not now, nor ever was, the intention of Mr. Nordlund to cause unnecessary delay, or to squander the valuable time and resources of the STATE. Mr. Nordlund seeks only to have a fair chance in court and adequately address his claims, and effectively defend his liberty interests.

Mr. Nordlund cedes that the format in which pertinent information may now be moot. Such as Motion to Suppress Evidence, however Mr. Nordlund believes that the information contained in said pleading is important for this Honorable Court to come to an accurate understanding of the total picture.

All alleged incidents are not isolated events, but are sequenced chain of events in a continuing episode relating to the same matter which conclusion began on April 17, 2019.

Mr. Nordlund also believes it is important for this Honorable Court to consider the information contained in the Post Conviction Relief pleading he intends to file in the matter of 3AN-19-4232cr.

It is not the intention of Mr. Nordlund to attempt to relitigate the matter in this court, but that this court is made aware of the procedural defects in the matter, and that if Mr. Nordlund's legal theory should fail in this court in regard to dismissal of the petition, that this court would not take part in the manifest injustice which resulted in a verdict of guilty against the liberty interest of Mr. Nordlund.

Mr. Nordlund believes his theory in law to be sound and that he is entitled to dismissal of the petition to revoke probation. However, should this Honorable Court rule against Mr. Nordlund's proposed dismissal, he would seek to establish a deliberate indifference to a serious medical need, and a cause of wanton and unnecessary pain; and ask that this court impose no further time than to which he is already sentenced.

Mr. Nordlund also prays that this Honorable Court rule on his proposed motion to withdraw plea. The law states that withdrawal may be necessary if certain criteria is demonstrated. It also states that withdrawal may be achieved through applicable statutes. The applicable statute refers to "court rules", but does not specify a particular rule.

Therefore, Mr. Nordlund believes that the particular rule that he brings said motion under applies in this circumstance. Furthermore, Mr. Nordlund prays that the Honorable John C. Cagle will listen to and take into consideration Mr. Nordlund's statement in open court given on December 7, 2007, at the sentencing hearing in the above captioned matter, and grant Mr. Nordlund's motion in order to correct a manifest injustice.

Mr. Nordlund has previously brought this matter to the courts attention in the matter of 1KE-17-00335ci. That court failed to rule on the matter. Mr. Nordlund prays that this court will not fail to consider this plea.

I, David Nordlund, certify under penalty of perjury that the foregoing is true, Wassilla, AK, April 27, 2020, no notary available. AS 09.63.020.

I certify that this document and its attachments do not contain (1) the name of a victim of a sexual offense listed in AS 12.61.140 or (2) a residence or business address or telephone number of a victim of or a witness to any crime unless it is an address used to identify the place of the crime or it is an address or telephone number in a transcript of a court proceeding and disclosure of the information was ordered by the court.

MOTION TO SUPPRESS EVIDENCE

Now comes, David Nordlund, acting Pro Se in the defense in the defense of the interest in DAVID CHRISTOPHER NORDLUND, and does hereby move this Honorable Court to suppress and prohibit the STATE's use as evidence ALL statements allegedly made by Mr. Nordlund between the time of 00:28:00 and 1:30:00 on April 17, 2019, when Mr. Nordlund was arrested by officers of the Anchorage Police Department; Mr. Nordlund also moves to suppress and prohibit the STATE's use as evidence the alleged meth and meth pipe allegedly found pursuant to an inventory search incident to incarceration.

This motion is brought under Rule of Criminal Procedure 12(b)(3) on the ground that ALL alleged evidence was obtained illegally in violation of United States Constitution Amendments 4 and 5, and Alaska Constitution art. 1 secs, 13 and 14

FACTS

On April 16, 2019, the Anchorage Police Department received a call of trespass at the time of 23:25:49 to the location of 736 Hyder St. On April 17, 2019, at 00:39:33 Anchorage Police Officer Dominick Eubank arrived at the location of 734 Hyder St. and shortly thereafter encountered David Nordlund in the stairwell of the 734 location.

Mr. Nordlund had been asked by his friend who manages the location to look for her cell phone while she was giving another of her friends a ride.

As Mr. Nordlund was ascending the stairwell Ofc. Eubank was descending the stairwell. At the point of contact Ofc. Eubank's body was positioned in the stairwell preventing further movement towards the only exit to the building.

Ofc. Eubank then questioned Mr. Nordlund about his presence in the building. Not wanting to engage Ofc. Eubank in conversation, but not being able to leave the encounter, Mr. Nordlund explained his presence in the building and as there were no numbers on the doors designating each apartment Mr. Nordlund described the location of where his friend resides.

Ofc. Eubank then repositioned his body allowing Mr. Nordlund to continue his movement. As Mr. Nordlund exited the building he noticed his friends roommate engaged in conversation with another of Anchorage's police officers. The friends roommate validated Mr. Nordlund's presence, yet this second officer proceeded to seize Mr. Nordlund for a second

1 time. Mr. Nordlund did not want to engage this officer
2 in conversation either, but this officer approached Mr.
3 Nordlund with his hands up palms out signal to stop. At 4 this point Mr. Nordlund had this second officer directly
5 to his front with Ofc. Eubank directly behind him. There
6 were also approximately an additional five more officers
7 present fanned out around the premises. Mr. Nordlund was 8 questioned.

9 At the termination of this second officer's questions
10 Mr. Nordlund was being allowed to leave the officer's
11 presence. It is at this point that Ofc. Eubank seizes 12 Mr. Nordlund for a third time and requires Mr. Nordlund to 13 furnish identification.

14 Mr. Nordlund asks Ofc. Eubank of what crime he was 15 suspected of committing, to which Ofc. Eubank replied, "
16 The crime of tresspass." Being that Ofc. Eubank specified
17 a crime, Mr. Nordlund was compelled to furnish identificat-
18 ion. Mr. Nordlund then handed over his identification so 19 that Ofc. Eubank could briefly scrutinize the document and 20 perform a cursory glance. Mr. Nordlund expressed his desire
21 that Ofc. Eubank not perform a search through the state law
22 enforcement's data bank as Mr. Nordlund was a probationer 23 and did not want to be put in a position as to have to 24 report police contact. Ofc. Eubank then ran a search of 25 Mr. Nordlund's identification.
26

27 After conducting this search, two officers placed hands
28 on Mr. Nordlund and placed him into handcuffs. As this was

1 being done Ofc. Eubank began to make a spectacle of Mr.
2 Nordlund's status as a "probationer", in a louder than 3 appropriate voice in the current surroundings. This 4 malicious conduct occurred for several minutes, before
5 Mr. Nordlund was eventually escorted to a patrol car.

6 During this encounter Mr. Nordlund informed Ofc.
7 Eubank that he had just been in a meeting with his pro-
8 bation officer that day and that he was in compliance with 9 his "probation conditions".

10 Ofc. Eubank chose to ignore this information and trans-
11 ported Mr. Nordlund to Anchorage Jail. At the jail, Magis-
12 trate Manculich conducted a bail hearing at which she ordered 13 $1,000 appearance bond unsecured. Mr. Nordlund was not facing 14 incarceration and was to be released immediately. Instead
15 Ofc. Eubank had the booking process initiated, at which time
16 it was alleged that Mr. Nordlund was found to be in possession
17 of meth and a meth pipe.

18 Ofc. Eubank then informed the Palmer probation office of 19 the alleged find, and the booking process was eventually 20 completed. At some point after the booking process was complet
21 the Palmer probation office faxed a remand order for the rev-
22 ocation of Mr. Nordlund's probation on the allegation that 23 Mr. Nordlund had been charged with a crime.

24 Incidentally, the STATE did not file charges against Mr.
25 Nordlund.

A person is seized within the meaning of the Fourth Amendment if a reasonable person under the circumstances would not feel free to leave. Pooley v state, 705 p.2d 1293, 1305. An interrogation is "custodial" under Miranda if there is "restraint on freedom of movement of the degree associated with a formal arrest," such as when the suspect is "detained under circumstances substantially more coercive than the typical traffic stop." Mills v state, 2019 Alas.App. LEXIS 144 at 2. Any show of force creating an actual restraint or submission to authority constitutes an arrest not a stop. Doris v state, 656 p.2d 578.

For an investigative stop to be lawful, the officer's action must be justified in its inception and the officer's conduct must be "reasonably related in circumstances that justified the stop in the first place." Brown v state, 182 p.3d 624,625. Before the police can subject a person to an investigative stop they must have reasonable suspicion of criminal activity that is currently posing an imminent danger to the public or that involved serious harm to persons or property. Coleman v state, 553 p.2d 40,46.

This instant matter involved a call of trespass over (1) hour removed from the seizure of Mr. Nordlunds person. There was nothing imminent nor dangerous about the situation to which the officers were responding. The seizure of Mr. Nordlund's person was not reasonable, and not lawful.

SCOPE OF DETENTION

This instant matter is analogous to the matter of Cousins In matter of Cousins v state, Alas. App. LEXIS 108, a state trooper stopped three companions when the trooper saw one of the three throw a firework into a lane of traffic. The trooper warned the three not to throw fireworks in the city or traffic. He was about to let them go when a city police officer arrived. When the other officer showed up, however, that officer asked for identification and did a check for warrants.

The court of appeals determined that this officer's action was a second detention and that it was illegal because it was not supported by any suspicion of criminal activity.

In determining that this type of stop was illegal, the court relied in part in Howard v state, 664 p.2d 603, in which they discussed some of the factors Alaska courts must consider in determining if an investigative stop exceeds its allowable scope:

First, the court must consider the purpose for the stop and, specifically, the kind of criminal activity being investigated,-- Second, the stop must be for a limited and specific inquiry, i.e., the police must be diligently pursuing a means of investigation which is soon likely to resolve the matter one way or another. Once the inquiry is completed the person detained must be freed or arrested. Third, the stop must be of brief duration; the exact length will depend part upon what is learned by the police relating to their suspicions. As one court pointed out:

The results of the initial stop may arouse further suspicion or may dispel the questions in the officer's mind. If the latter is the case, the stop may go no further and the detained individual must be free to go. If, on the contrary, the officer's suspicions

1 confirmed or are further aroused, the stop may be prolonged
2 as required by the circumstances. Id. at 609-10.

4 Thus, once the normal process that motivated th stop is 5 completed, for instance, in the case of a routine traffic
6 stop, once the officer hands the motorist a warning ticket
7 or citation and returns his drivers license and registration
8 or otherwise demonstrates that the purpose of the stop has 9 been effectuated--the stop may go no further unless (1) the 10 officer has reasonable suspicion that some other criminal 11 activity is afoot, or (2) the initial detention has become 12 a consensual encounter.

13 (Cabellas, 543 us 405, 407: "A seizure that is justified
14 solely by the interest in issuing a warning ticket to the 15 driver can become unlawful if it is prolonged beyond the time
16 reasonably required to complete that mission")

17 The Cousins court then began to explain: "Furthermore,
18 this second detention was unlawful because it was not support-
19 ed by any suspicion of criminal activity. United States v
20 Lucket, 484 F.2d 89, 90-91 (9th circuit) (after a defendant
21 was cited for jaywalking, continued detention to run a warrant 22 check was unlawful in the absence of reasonable suspicion of 23 criminal activity). "Although it is crucial for law enforce-
24 ment officials to continue an investigation when suspicious
25 facts warrant it, they cannot embark upon an investigatory
26 course of action in the hope that something might turn up,"
27 Waring v state, 670 p.2d 357, 366.

28

DEVIS INSTRUM 110 DE

22301 W. Alsop Rd.
Wasilla, AK 99623

1 The Cousins court then states: "Although there was
2 nothing particularly coercive or threatening about this stop
3 it was this type of suspicionless detention that the Fourth
4 Amendment and the exclusionary rule were designed to prevent.
5 After the purposes of the initial stop were accomplished, the 6 officers detained Cousins for another ten to twenty minutes
7 without any suspicion of criminal activity. We have previously
8 condemned this type of 'expedition for evidence.'" G.R. v
9 state, 638 p.2d 191,201.

10 Cousins at 14

11
12 In this instant matter the officers did not run Mr.
13 Nordlund's identity through the state law enforcement's
14 data bank until, arguably, 15 minutes after the initial encount-
15 er. This detention was unreasonably prolonged and exceeded
16 the scope of what initiated the stop in the first place.
17 Mr. Nordlund was not trespassed from the premisses and had 18 his presence validated by a resident of the building. Any 19 questions in the officer's minds about whether or not Mr.
20 Nordlund was trespassing should have been dispelled at this 21 point and any further detention of Mr. Nordlund and subsequent 22 computer check was unreasonable.

WARRANTLESS INTRUSION ONTO PRIVATE PROPERTY

Furthermore, questions arise about the validity of the officers entrance into the location of 734 Hyder when the call was made to 736 Hyder. On this question the Alaska Supreme Court states:

"It is well settled that an officer's observation of things in plane view made from a place where he has a right to be does not constitute a search in the constitutional sense.

Conversely, when the observation's are made from an area to which the officer has not been expressly or impliedly invited, the intrusion is an unlawful search unless made pursuant to a warrant or one of the established exceptions to the warrant requirement. Chilton v state, 611 p.2d 53,55.

In the instant matter the police entered into a private building in which they were not invited, nor had a warrant to enter.

Assuming arguendo, the police had reason and authority to accost Mr. Nordlund, to detain and question him against his will, Ofc. Eubank did not have probable cause to forcibly move the person of Mr. Nordlund, and transport him to the Anchorage Jail.

"If" the seizure of Mr. Nordlund was lawful, "if" the questioning without Miranda warnings was lawful, and "if" the method in which the police conducted the seizure was lawful, Ofc. Eubank had at most reasonable suspicion to enlarge the scope of questioning.

As stated above, Mr. Nordlund had informed Ofc. Eubank that he had just been in a meeting with his probation officer earlier that day. A prudent, reasonably cautious man, would have verified this information before placing an individual

1 into handcuffs and making a public spectacle of him, and 2 transporting him to the local jail.

3 By his own admission Ofc. Eubank knew that Mr. Nordlund
4 had until the end of the next business day to report any 5 changes in his status as a "probationer".

6 WARRANTLESS INCIDENT SEARCHES

7 In the matter of Zehrunge v state, 569 p.2d 189 at 196
8 Alaska's Supreme Court reiterates the requirements of warr-
9 antless searches incident to arrest as follows: " Adequate
10 protection for the arrestee's legitimate interests in priva-
11 cy, however, will be provided by the following restrictions
12 on warrantless incidental searches of the person: (1) The 13 arrest must be valid-probable cause for the arrest must exi-
14 st or the search is unconstitutional. (2) The search must be 15 roughly contemporaneous with the arrest....(3) The arrest
16 must not be a pretext for the search; a search incident to 17 a sham arrest is not valid....(4) Finally, the arrest must 18 be for a crime, evidence of which could be concealed on a 19 person. McCoy v state, 491 p.2d 127, 138.

20 The Zehrunge court then goes on to explain the differen-21 ces between searches incident to arrest for weapons, and 22 inventory searches incident to incarceration, in which the 23 court holds that a warrantless jailhouse inventory is with-24 out justification when an arrestee is not going to be incar-
25 cerated, and is therefore constitutionally impermissible.

26 Zehrunge, 569 at 189. and,

27 We have held that, under the circumstances of this case,
28 since Zehrunge was entitled to be released on bail without

1 appearing before a magistrate, there was no justification
2 whatever for processing him through the preincarceration
3 remand and booking procedures and, as an incident to this,
4 searching his person and his personal belongings.Id.200

5 In this instant matter, Mr. Nordlund had appeared before 6 a magistrate at which time Mr. Nordlund was subject to an 7 unsecured bond. Mr. Nordlund was NOT subject to incarceration.
8 By the time Mr. Nordlund appeared before the magistrate
9 Ofc. Eubank was informed by the Palmer probation office that 10 Mr. Nordlund had in fact met with his probation officer that 11 day. It stands that Mr. Nordlund was in compliance with his 12 "probation" conditions at the point he left the meeting and 13 until the end of the next business day to report any necessary
14 changes. Therefore, Ofc. Eubank did NOT have probable 15 cause to make an arrest, nor subject Mr. Nordlund to the 16 jail's remand and booking process.

17 It was a result of this unconstitutional search aimed 18 at a probationer that the alleged "evidence" that Mr. Nordlund
19 seeks to suppress was obtained.

20 As the Alaska Supreme Court holds: "In the event the 21 lawless arrest and search or seizure is carried out by enforcement
22 with knowledge or reasons to believe the suspect was a 23 probationer, we would then apply the exclusionary rule in the 24 probation revocation proceeding." State v Sears, 553 p.3d 907
25 914.

On April 17, 2019, Anchorage police officers entered into a private building without a warrant and seized an individual by physical restraint and a show of force, questioned this individual with ^{out} Miranda warnings, thus, compelling him to be a witness against himself, and upon learning he was a probationer, and his status as a "probationer", subjected him to public, malicious, conduct by the arresting officers.

The officers transported this individual, without probable cause, to the local jail, and subjected him to a warrantless, unconstitutional, search with full knowledge that he was a probationer.

As the seizure was unlawful, and the incident search was aimed at a probationer, the resulting fruits are poisonous and therefore the STATE must not benefit from their use.

The highest court of the state mandates that the exclusionary rule apply in any resulting probation revocation stemming from this illegality.

Furthermore, the allegation is that Mr. Nordlund was charged with a new crime, not that he possessed the items in question. Mr. Nordlund was not charged with a new crime in these matters, therefore, the petition to revoke probation does not stand.

Being that the herein mentioned alleged items the STATE would seek to use are not admissible, nor is the allegation substantial, this court must dismiss the STATE's petition to revoke probation in this instant matter.

The foregoing briefs my claim. However, in sum:

1. The Alaska Constitution secures my right to a Speedy Trial
2. The Supreme Court of Alaska promulgated Rule 45 to protect my right to a speedy trial
3. Speedy Trial rights attach upon the filing of information or Arrest
4. My right to a Speedy Trial attached on April 29, 2019, thus beginning my Speedy Trial clock
5. Speedy Trial time limit is 120 days
6. I was available at all times, to no human error
7. My Speedy Trial time ended August 27, 2019

I David Nordlund have a right to a public and speedy trial secured by the Alaska Constitution, which states in pertinent part,:

Article I, Section 11 of the Alaska Constitution

"In all criminal prosecutions, the accused shall have the right to a public and speedy trial xrv."

Knudsen v Anchorage, 358 P.2d 375, 377

The use 'shall have' by the framers of the Alaska Constitution is interpreted as being more than an attempt to state more specifically and definitely that the right of the accused is a possessory one and to eliminate any possibility of ambiguity resulting from a present day interpretation of the phrase 'shall enjoy'

Id at 377
and see Rutherford v State, 486 P.2d 946 112

The Speedy Trial right has its origins in English law.

Sir Edward Coke wrote that "the innocent shall not be worn and wasted by long imprisonment, but ... speedily come to his trial." As this indicates, the core evil that the right was originally designed to prevent was lengthy pretrial incarceration. But modern cases have recognized that the right has broader purposes. Inordinate delay, regardless of incarceration, may impair a defendant's ability to prepare an effective defense. And regardless of prejudice in attempting to defend the merits, long delay may "seriously interfere with a defendant's liberty, whether he is free on bail or not, and ... may disrupt his employment, drain his financial resources, curtail his associations, subject him to public obloquy, and create anxiety in him, his family, and his friends."

State v Wright, 404 P.3d 166, 171-72 (2017)

The proper interpretation of the Alaska Constitution is a "question of law which [The Supreme Court of Alaska] applies [their] independent judgement, adopting the rule of law that is most persuasive in light of precedent, reason, and policy."

Premiera Blue Cross v State Dept of Commerce, Comty. & Econ. Dev., Div. of Ins., 171 P.3d 1110, 1115 (Alaska 2007) (citing State Commercial Fisheries Entry Comm'n v Carlson, 65 P.3d 851, 858 (Alaska 2003))

In Alaska we have no statutory provisions by which to measure the definite time within which trial must be held. The time limit within which the accused must be brought to trial in order to satisfy the commands of our federal and state constitutions is very imprecise.

Glasgow v state, 469 P.2d 682, 688

The state's principal argument in support of its assertion that rule 45 is not merely "a method for enforcing a right" is based upon the fact that Rule 45 protections exceed the Speedy trial mandate of both the Federal and Alaska Constitutions. In this regard we observed in Deacon v state, 575 P.2d 1225, 1229 (Alaska 1978) that: State and federal constitutional requirements mandate that there be no unreasonable delay in bringing the accused to trial.... Rule 45 is designed to satisfy the imprecise limits of the constitutional right to a speedy trial with much room to spare....

The disparity between constitutional requirements and Rule 45 time limits partly derives from the fact that Rule 45 serves two purposes. It "was promulgated to ensure protection of the constitutional right to a speedy trial and to advance the public interest in swift justice." Peterson v state, 562 P.2d 1350, 1358 (Alaska)

State v Williams, 681 P.2d 313, 316-17

We have relied upon the substance / procedure dichotomy in differentiating our rule making power from the legislature's authority to enact statutes. In Thomas v State, 566 P.2d 630 (Alaska 1977) the principle was enunciated as follows:

The distinction between substance and procedure is of importance because article IV, section 15 of the Alaska Constitution vests the power to make and promulgate rule governing practice and procedure in the Supreme Court of Alaska, while the power to create substantive rights is a legislative power, the authority to enact procedures to implement those rights is, by virtue of article IV, section 15, judicial.

State v Williams, 681 P.2d 313, 315

Id [Nolan v Sea Air motive, Inc., 627 P.2d 1035 (Alaska 1981) at 1042-43]

The administration of justice is the day to day business of the courts: they are better equipped than a legislature to know the most effective and efficient methods of conducting that business. The field of judicial procedure should not remain static; there is need for regular review and revision of basic rules "to keep them abreast of new trends and applicable generally to the substantive law as it develops.

State v Williams, 681 P.2d 313, 316

The purpose of Criminal Rule 45 is to protect a defendant's right to have the criminal charges brought against him resolved within a reasonable period of time. Although the particular time period is to some degree arbitrary, the purpose of the rule is to set an exact time when the rule starts and an exact time when it ends. Unfortunately, the rule does not establish when a charging document is "served." This flaw in the rule creates uncertainty about when the time period begins.

State v Grottschell, 138 p.3d 1170, 1172

Assuming arguendo that rule 45 will generally provide a defendant with a speedier trial than is constitutionally required, it is necessary to determine whether the rule thereby "creates" a substantive right. The fact that Rule 45 incidentally affects an accused's right to a speedy trial is not determinative of the constitutional issue raised here.

One of the basic rationales underlying this court's adoption of Rule 45 was the concern to adhere as closely as possible to fixed distinctions in order to avoid replicating the case by case approach it was intended to supercede. As the Indiana Supreme Court observed in State v Lake Criminal Court, 247 Ind. 87, 212 N.E. 2d 21, 23 (1965) in evaluating arguments similar to those raised here:

This court could arbitrarily refuse to make a rule outlining the reasonable time limitations for a speedy criminal trial and wait until the appropriate case arises for a decision. However, in a realistic approach to this problem the court should not act in an ex post facto manner, leaving the trial courts in uncertainty as to what standards and procedures are to be applied, but rather this court has the responsibility to fix in advance the required procedural steps in the trial court. Under Rule 1-4D, all trial courts have a guide and standard as the question arises. We therefore find no merit in the contention that this court has no jurisdiction or no responsibility in seeing that judicial proceedings are administered in an orderly and uniform fashion in carrying out the constitutional provisions for a speedy trial.

Similarly, we conclude that any additional protections which Rule 45 arguably confers upon criminal defendants are justified by the fact that these are incidental to the efficient implementation of the constitutional right to a speedy trial.

State v Williams, 681 P.2d 313, 317

In Yarbor v State, we stated that the speedy trial time starts when the defendant "becomes formally accused -- that is the subject of a filed complaint or arrest."

State v Wright, 404 P.3d 166, 173-74

Initially, we must determine when Adams' rights under Rule 45 attached. He argues that he should have been brought to trial within 120 days after his arrest on August 28, 1975. The state contends that the speedy trial requirements of Rule 45 did not attach on August 28 because Adams was released at that time without the filing of a formal charge.

The state relies on Yarbor v State, 546 P.2d 564 (Alaska 1976). In Yarbor we held that the defendant's constitutional right to a speedy trial did not attach at the time he was questioned by police concerning alleged lewd acts towards a child, i.e., the time "when the state had acquired sufficient evidence to charge the defendant with a crime." We held that such right attached only after he was "formally accused" by the later filing of a complaint.

Id at 566-67. Our opinion, however, clearly indicates that, for purposes of the right to speedy trial, one is also "formally accused" when arrested: "We now join our sister states in holding that the right to a speedy trial does not attach before the defendant becomes formally accused -- that is the subject of a filed complaint or an arrest," Id at 567

The case at bar differs from Yarbor in two major respects. First, Yarbor involved the speedy trial guarantee found in Article I, section 11 of the constitution of Alaska, which, unlike rule 45 contains no express provision that it attaches upon the "arrest" of the defendant. Second, although not clearly stated in our published opinion, it is quite apparent that the defendant in Yarbor had not been arrested prior to service of the formal complaint. Adams, on the other hand, was apprehended at gunpoint, then handcuffed and transported to police headquarters for questioning as a result of the acts forming the basis for the mayhem charge. We think it beyond question that Adams was "arrested" on August 28, 1975 within the meaning of Rule 45. see AS 12.25.050; 12.25.160; Richardson v state, 563 P.2d 266, 268 n.2 (Alaska 1977)

For the foregoing reasons, we hold that the stated reliance on Yarbor is misplaced and that Adam's rights under Rule 45 attached at the time of his arrest on August 28, 1975

Adams v state, 598 P.2d 503, 506

C. The Court of Appeals decision

But the court held that Wright's State Speedy Trial right attached when the felony information was filed in November of 1999. The court based its holding in part on the court of appeals' decision in State v. Mouser and in part on this court's decision in Yarbor v. State.

State v. Wright, 404 P.3d 166, 170

IV Discussion. A. Purpose of the right to a speedy trial.

This case concerns the speedy trial guarantee expressed in the Alaska Constitution and its procedures for initiating criminal prosecutions.

Wright at 171

B. The first question in this case is when a defendant is "formally accused" for purposes of starting the speedy trial clock under the Alaska Constitution. Specifically this case concerns whether the filing of a criminal information triggers the speedy trial right.

In Alaska the initial pleading in a criminal case may be an information, a complaint, or an indictment. All are charging documents with formal requirements prescribed by rule. All may charge either misdemeanors or felonies. But felony charges initiated by a complaint or information are generally not the final pleading required before a defendant can be brought to trial. For that, an indictment is necessary unless the defendant waives an indictment, in which case trial may proceed based on an information.

Informations and complaints are generally similar. The main differences are that informations must be signed by the prosecuting attorney and complaints need not be, and complaints can never serve alone as the basis for a felony prosecution, even if an indictment is waived, while informations can. The filing of a complaint or information sets in motion the litigation process described in Alaska Criminal Rules 3, 4, 5.1, 7 and 9. But the rules do not indicate how the litigation process aligns with the state constitutional right to a speedy trial.

wright at 172-73

Our case law has also considered the issue. In Yarbor v State, we stated that the speedy trial time starts when the defendant "becomes formally accused" - that is, the subject of a filed complaint or arrest.

wright at 173-74

The state argued that the speedy trial right should not attach prior to "accusation", a term that is defined as "that point in time when a person is officially charged with the commission of a crime either by arrest, with or without a warrant, complaint, information or indictment, whichever occurs first."

wright at 174

Instead, we conclude today that a defendant becomes formally accused for speedy trial purposes under the Alaska Constitution not just upon indictment or arrest but also when the state files an information charging the defendant with a crime.

wright at 174-75

we reach this conclusion because the filing of an information marks the beginning of litigation against a defendant. An information is a formal document with prescribed contents. It must include the name of the defendant, the statute the defendant is charged with violating, and a concise and definite written statement of the essential facts constituting the crime. An information must also bear the signature of the prosecuting attorney. It is a public document, available for view by anyone in the office of the clerk of court. When an information is filed, the title of the charges, a citation to the statutes on which the charges are based, and the defendant's name are promptly entered into the courtview database, and thus becomes viewable by anyone with access to the internet. When the prosecutor's office files an information it "clearly manifests its decision to prosecute." And the filing of an information is sufficient to toll the statutes of limitations on a criminal charge.

When an information is filed the court must either issue a warrant of arrest or a summons requiring the defendant to appear in court at a specified time.

Wright at 174-75

We believe that the purposes of the speedy trial right are best secured when the speedy trial clock begins with the filing of an information. As we observed above, the purpose of the speedy trial guarantee is to prevent lengthy pretrial imprisonment and other adverse impacts of delay. Given the question in this case, incarceration is not a factor since it is undisputed that an arrest would trigger the attachment of speedy trial rights. But long delay, regardless of incarceration, may impair a defendant's ability to prepare an effective defense, disrupt a defendant's employment, drain his or her financial resources, circumscribe his or her associations, subject the defendant to public shame and create anxiety in the defendant and his or her family and friends. These interests come into play as readily with the filing of an information as with the return of a grand jury indictment. A holding that speedy trial rights do not attach until an indictment issues potentially leaves a long period when a defendant is publicly accused by an information, suffers detriments meant to be protected against by the speedy trial guarantee, but does not receive its protection.

The fact that pending charges are now available on the internet in searchable form magnifies their potential for harm. Such broad publicity, especially when the charges are of heinous nature, can effect near banishment of the person charged from certain lines of work and certain sectors of society, and also increases the potential that charges may be filed or maintained for vindictive or otherwise improper purposes.

Wright at 176-77

When the state files an information, the state has placed the accused under a cloud of suspicion. At that point it is appropriate to employ the more demanding speedy trial standard. It imposes an incentive on the state to bring the accused to trial promptly and protects interests of the accused, placed at risk by the filing of the information, ...

For these reasons, we conclude that the speedy trial time begins to run with the filing of an information ...

Wright at 178

Rule 45 was promulgated to ensure protection of the constitutional right to a speedy trial ... Peterson v State, 562 P.2d 1350, 1358 (Alaska)

State v Williams, 681 P.2d 313, 316-17

Speedy trial is a substantive right secured by AK CONST. Art. I, Sec. 11

Rule 45 is a constitutional exercise of this court's rule making authority
State v Williams, 681 P.2d 313, 319

Rule 45 is a procedure that protects the substantive right to a speedy trial which sets the time limits at 120 days, R 45 (b)

The rule of construction favoring specific provisions over general provisions need not be invoked unless it is impossible to give effect to both provisions

To the same effect, this court explained in Haffling v Inlandboatmen's Union of the Pacific, 585 P.2d 870, 878 (Alaska 1978), that

All statutes relating to the same subject matter should be read together as a whole in order that a total scheme evolves which maintains the integrity of each act and avoids ignoring one or the other

National Bank v Department of Revenue, 642 P. at 818

Another established principle of statutory construction is that when one statute deals with a subject in general terms and another deals with a part of the same subject in more detail, the two should be harmonized if possible, but if there is any conflict, the more specific statute will prevail. Matter of Hutchinson Estate, 577 P.2d 1074, 1075; Stone v State, 690 P.2d 22, 24; 2A Sutherland, Statutory Construction § 51.05 at 499. We must also adhere to the general rule that ambiguous penal statutes are to be strictly construed in favor of the accused. State v Andrews, 707 P.2d 900, 907 (Alas. App. 1985) aff'd 723 P.2d 85 (Alaska 1986)

(HNS when two regulations, one of general application, and the other of specific application, seemingly apply to the same situation and seemingly call for different results, the more specific regulation controls

LEXIS 187

Under the Rule of Statutory Construction, giving full force and effect to the language ;
"Speedy trial", "speedy trial right", "Speedy Trial Time", and "speedy trial time limit"

The Supreme Court of Alaska can answer the Alaska Court of Appeals at State v Gottschalk, 138 P.3d 1170 at 1175 :

" For this reason, I think that the Supreme Court should direct the Criminal rules committee to consider how Criminal Rule 45 (c)(1) might be amended to cure this problem."

For it is clear the Supreme Court Rules that the rights of a person in Alaska who becomes accused of a crime attach when that person becomes accused, when the state initiates prosecution by either arrest or the filing of a complaint, and not merely at the point which the state prosecutor notifies the accused person by the serving of paperwork.

1. Raygor, Jacob : 63947
2. Braeger, Bradley : 60746
3. Schafer, Brandon : 63940

Schafer, Brandon : 63940 placed me into handcuffs

Schafer, Brandon : 63940 placed me into his patrol car

Schafer, Brandon : 63940 transported my person

All of which against my will

Schafer, Brandon placed me under arrest and obtained the court's jurisdiction over my person

But we have also noted that, "in many... criminal cases, the court obtains jurisdiction over the defendant's person by literally seizing the defendant - either pursuant to a warrant as provided in Criminal Rule 4, or by taking custody of the defendant following the defendant's arrest without a warrant.

Pedersen v State, 2012 Alas. App. LEXIS 52,
FNI

Kotsonis v Superior Motor Express, 539 F.Supp. 642, 646 (M.D.N.C. 1982) stating that, in the context of transfer of venue, "personal jurisdiction once obtained is not lost." ; Giltford v People, 2d P.3d 120, 130 (Colo. 2000) (en ban) (Hobbs, J. concurring) (explaining that "a court does not generally lose jurisdiction by the occurrence of a subsequent event, even if that event would have prevented acquiring jurisdiction in the first instance"); Boardman v Boardman, 135 Conn. 124, 62 A2d 521, 525 (Conn. 1948) (regarding as settled law that "if a court of a state has jurisdiction when an action is brought to it, a subsequent removal of a party from the state will not terminate that jurisdiction"); People v Goecker, 457 Mich. 442, 579 N.W. 2d 868, 876 (Mich. 1998) ("Having once vested in the circuit court, personal jurisdiction [over a criminal defendant] is not lost even when a void or improper information is filed.")

State v Carlin, 249 P.3d 752, at FN 64

The second purpose furthered by Rule 45 is the "societal interest" in ensuring that crimes will be prosecuted expeditiously. Providing for prompt attention to criminal proceedings is a matter of calendaring, a function generally considered to be within the judiciary's domain. Thus, this court's promulgation of rule 45 is not violative of the doctrine of separation of powers. As the seventh circuit observed in U.S. v. Clay, 481 F.2d 133, 137 (7th Cir. 1973), cert. denied, 414 U.S. 1009, 38 L.Ed. 2d 247, 94 S.Ct. 371 (1973):

"[Federal] Rule [Crim. P.] 45(b) [similar to Rule 45] is a codification of the inherent power of a court to dismiss a case for want of prosecution."

[Citing Moore's Federal Practice para. 48.01[1]] In order to maintain control of its calendar, a court has the power to require the parties to proceed with diligence and to meet deadlines established by court rule or order.

Assuming arguendo that Rule 45 is a legitimate exercise of judicial power, the state further argues that dismissal with prejudice "is an extremely important public policy matter," one that the legislature, rather than the courts should determine. The state also compares Rule 45 to a statute of limitations, contending that "the two rules are analogous because they function the same way -- trial delay causing absolute bar to prosecution." Since it is well-established that statutes of limitations are "substantive" rather than "procedural", Nolan, supra, 627 P.2d at 1045, the state argues that determination of Rule 45 time limits and sanctions is also the prerogative of the legislature.

The Washington Supreme Court explicitly rejected a similar argument in State v Edwards, 94 Wash. 2d 208, 616, P.2d 620 (1980)(en banc) There the court considered the contention that Washington's Speedy Trial rule unconstitutionally infringes on legislative function by creating a "substantive" statute of limitations." This is not true. The time limits are triggered by the state's actions and are not an attempt to limit the time frame for prosecution of a specific crime 616 P.2d at 623

Similarly, the second circuit reasoned in United States v Furey, 514 F.2d 1098, 1104 (2d cir. 1975) that, "The dismissal remedy cannot be denominated substantive merely because it can operate to cut off the right of the government to prosecute."

State v Williams, 681 P.2d 313, 317-18

In view of the foregoing, we conclude that the dismissal with prejudice sanction for non-compliance with Rule 45 represents an appropriate exercise of this court rule-making power. It is not unusual for procedural rules to carry severe sanctions for non-compliance. Several state rules similar to Rule 45 call for dismissal with prejudice as a sanction for non-compliance

Williams at 319

U.S. Const. amend. 6 provides in relevant part as follows:
"In all criminal prosecutions, the accused shall enjoy the right to a speedy and public trial * * * *". This provision was made applicable to the states through the due process clause of the Fourteenth Amendment in Klopfer v North Carolina, 386 US 213, 87 S. Ct. 988, 18 L. Ed. 2d 1 (1967). Alaska Const. Art. 1, Sec. 11 provides in relevant part as follows: "In all criminal prosecutions, the accused shall have the right to a speedy and public trial * * * *".

Rutherford v State, 486 P.2d 946
at FN 2

The state argues that absence of proof of demand for trial, lack of prosecutorial fault, and no showing of actual prejudice should be determinative here. However, our opinion in Glasgow v State, supra, casts serious doubt on the relevancy of any of these criteria where lengthy delay has occurred:

The degree to which earlier case law on speedy trial is still sound has been thrown into some doubt by the Klopfer and Hoey decisions. Both stress the burden resting upon the state to bring the accused promptly to trial. Neither case resorts to undue technicalities about the necessity of showing prejudice to the defense, nor are waiver doctrines apparently relied upon.

As a result of Hoey and Klopfer it is apparent that a positive duty rests upon the courts and prosecutors to see that criminal defendants are afforded a speedy trial. The requirement of a demand, the showing of prejudicial harm to the defendant's case, and the implication of a waiver from the defendant's failure to make a demand arguably are no longer determinative of the claim to a speedy trial. While the presence of a demand or a showing of prejudice to one's case can only help the claim, their absence alone will not necessarily frustrate the right to a speedy trial, including the right to a dismissal of the charges with prejudice when there has been a clear denial of this constitutional right. We reach this conclusion on the basis of our interpretation of article I, section II, of the Alaska Constitution - rather than upon any dispositive holding in Hooey and Klopfer.

Rutherford at 949

Furthermore, under our system of criminal justice, it is the prosecution which initiates a case and which has the power of going forward with it. In the exercise of this power it is the duty of the public prosecutor to observe the constitution. To condition that duty on a defendant's having demanded constitutional compliance is, in our view, an unacceptable misallocation of the burden of insuring a speedy trial. We, therefore, reaffirm the position announced in Glasgow that the burden is upon the state to give a speedy trial or be denied the power to prosecute

Rutherford at 950

An accused's right to be represented by counsel is a fundamental component of our criminal justice system. Lawyers in criminal cases "are necessities, not luxuries." Their presence is essential because they are the means through which other rights of the person on trial are secured. Without counsel, the right to a trial itself would be "of little avail," as this court has recognized repeatedly", of all the rights that an accused person has, the right to be represented by counsel is by far the most pervasive for it affects his ability to assert any other rights he may have."

The special value of the right to the assistance of counsel explains why "it has long been recognized that the right to counsel is the right to the effective assistance of counsel", McMann v Richardson, 397 U.S. 759, 771 n. 14. The text of the Sixth Amendment itself suggests as much. The amendment requires not merely provision of counsel to the accused, but "Assistance" which is to be "for his defence." Thus, "the core purpose of the counsel guarantee was to assure 'assistance at trial', when the accused was confronted with both intricacies of the law and the advocacy of the public prosecutor," United States v Ash, 413 U.S. 300, 339. If no actual "Assistance" "for" the accused's "defence" is provided, then the constitutional guarantee has been violated. To hold otherwise "could convert the appointment of counsel into a sham and nothing more than a formal compliance with the constitution's requirement that an accused be given the assistance of counsel. The constitution's guarantee of assistance cannot be satisfied by mere formal appointment." Avery v. Alabama, 308 U.S. 444, 446

United States v Cronk, 446 U.S.
648 at 654

I was arrested April 29, 2019 for the matter of 3AN-19-4232 ca.
See Anchorage Police Report: case number 19-014932, incident number A191190129

Information was filed with the court regarding above stated matter

I did not have the same opportunity to gather evidence as the state so I requested judicial action in the assistance of gathering exculpatory evidence so that I may adequately defend myself

Namely:

1. open mic conversations of an illegal investigatory stop perpetrated against myself by the Anchorage Police Dept on April 17, 2019
2. logs and recordings of calls made by myself to 911 on the date of alleged incident
3. locating a community safety patrol van on date of alleged incident
4. obtaining the "original" video surveillance footage
5. obtaining "original" footage of body cameras worn by police officers

After the appointment of counsel to my case I made repeated requests to him, Willy Madcira, for same exculpatory evidence, to no avail

My counsel has failed in assisting me in my defence

My counsel has failed to apply the proper Speedy Trial commencement date

I prepared an Ex Parte notification for the matter of :

1. ineffective assistance of counsel
2. objection to trial date of Sept. 3, 2019

the ineffective assistance claim was grounded upon my counsel failing to gather exculpatory evidence for my defence, and that I had never received any discovery

(my discovery is being intentionally withheld)

This notification was seized by the Department of Corrections and became unavailable to me that I could not file it with the courts prior to the trial date of Sept. 3, 2019

Aug. 29, 2019 at a status hearing the state's prosecutor announced she was not ready for trial thereby setting the trial date further out, (though on August 26, 2019 there had been no issue)

I accuse the Department of Corrections of sending copies of my legal document, through a back door channel, to the state's prosecutor and colluding to thwart my claim of discovery violations and (inadequate) ineffective assistance of counsel in the preparation of my trial

Ex Parte

Notification

Comes Now, defendant, David Nordlund, In Propria Persona, and do hereby submit, this notification, Ex Parte, to this Honorable Court, of two instant matters:

1. Concern that defense counsel has failed to show the proper skill, judgement, and diligence of a reasonably competent defense counsel as necessary to ensure adequate assistance of counsel
2. objection to trial date as set as defendants speedy trial time runs out on August 27, 2019 grounds for such follows:

ANCHORAGE CORRECTIONAL COMPLEX E

The United States Supreme Court states in United States v. Cronin, 466 U.S. 648 at 654:

An accused's right to be represented by counsel is a fundamental component of our criminal justice system. Lawyers in criminal cases "are necessities, not luxuries."

Their presence is essential because they are the means through which other rights of the person on trial are secured. Without counsel, the right to a trial itself would be "of little avail," as this court has recognized repeatedly, "Of all the rights that an accused person has, the right to be represented by counsel is by far the most pervasive for it affects his ability to assert any other rights he may have."

The special value of the right to the assistance of explains why "it has long been recognized that the right to counsel is the right to the effective assistance of counsel," McMann v. Richardson, 397 U.S.

759, 771 n.14. The text of the Sixth amendment itself suggests as much. The Amendment requires not merely the provision of counsel to the accused, but "Assistance," which is to be "for his defence." Thus, "the core purpose of counsel guarantee was to assure 'Assistance at trial, when the accused was confronted with both the intricacies of the law and the advocacy of the public prosecutor.'" United States v. Ash 413 U.S.

300, 339. If no actual "Assistance" "for" the accused's "defence" is provided, then the constitutional guarantee has been violated.

To hold otherwise "could convert the appointment of counsel into a sham and nothing more than a formal compliance with the constitution's requirement that an accused be given the assistance of counsel. The constitution's guarantee of assistance of counsel cannot be satisfied by mere formal appointment."

Avery v. Alabama, 308 U.S. 444, 446

Being as such, defendant's assistance of counsel can only be construed as nominal at best. Defendant's counsel has failed to assist in obtaining exculpatory evidence needed to ensure proper defense.

i.e.:

1. open mic conversations of an illegal investigatory stop perpetrated against defendant by A.P.D. after defendant notified A.P.D. that he was a probationer

2. logs and recordings of calls to 911 made by defendant

3. locating a community safety patrol van

4. obtaining the "original" of video surveillance footage, AND defence counsel has failed to recognize the commencement of defendant's speedy trial time: On April 29, 2019 the defendant was arrested and taken into custody by Anchorage Police officers. On the same day information was filed in the courts. As stated in State v. Wright, 404 P.3d 166 at 178:

When the State files an information, the state has placed the accused under a cloud of suspicion. At that point it is appropriate to employ the more demanding speedy trial standard. It imposes an incentive on the state to bring the accused to trial promptly and protects interests of the accused, placed at risk by the filing of the information...

... for those reasons, we conclude that the speedy trial time begins to run with the filing of an information...

And requiring the state to fulfill its duties as required by law, as Glasgow v. State, 469 P.2d 682 at 686 states:

As the courts observed in People v. Prosser, 309

N.Y. 353, 130 N.E. 2d 891 "It is the state which initiates the action and it is the state which must see that the defendant is arraigned. It is likewise the state which has the duty of seeing that the defendant is speedily brought to trial." 130 N.E. 2d at 895 to speedily bring the defendant to trial within 120 days of the filing of information, as stated in Mouser, 806 P.2d at 339:

... the Alaska Supreme Court ... made clear ...

speedy trial attaches ... "defendant becomes formally accused" ... Yarbrow, 546 P.2d 564, 567

There has been no tolling of speedy trial time attributable to the defendant.

The defendant has not attempted to flee prosecution. In fact, the defendant sought out the courts upon learning of the warrant in order to answer the State's allegations.

In exercising "Due Dilligence", A.P.D. should have :

1. left an officer with defendant
2. cuffed defendant to bed
3. placed hospital security with defendant
4. issued a summons to appear
5. sought defendant through probation officer
6. sought defendant through court records
7. sought defendant through public defender agency

The state's prosecution has in no way been prejudiced in bringing the defendant to trial.

Unlike the state, the defendant has been prejudiced by :

1. obtaining exculpatory evidence
2. the state's withholding of discovery
3. having his "Due Process" rights violated by the state in not disclosing the "original" recordings of video surveillance as required by Rule 1002

On August 27, 2019 defendant's speedy trial time runs out, thus violating defendant's right to a public and speedy trial.
